WHO DISCOVERED IT?

Prof. Barnard's Contribution to the Controversy Over Jupiter's Satellite. SAN JOSE, CAL., Oct. 3 .- The following communication from Prof. Barnard concerning the discovery of Jupiter's fifth moon has been furnished to the Associated Press: "My attention has been called to a telegraphic dispatch going the rounds of the press to the effect that Mr. Cartright of Detroit has presented a claim for the fifth satellite of Jupiter. backed up with affidavits of a startling nature. have already in an article published toptember 25 shown the folly of such claims, if for no other reason than the fact that this satellite can only be seen with the giant telescope of the world. None of these claim-ants have ever been heard of before in connecion with any astronomical works, good or bad ir indifferent. I only notice this claim of Mr. Cartright's because a statement is made in the dispatch referred to that is as detestable as it is atemptible, and requires reply.

"The dispatch says: 'It would seem apparent that letters sent to observatories, at any rate that one sent to Lick observatory, directly inspired the discovery of the fifth satellite by Prof. Barnard.' As to this portion of the dispatch I would say that up to the present mo-ment any letter ever sent to Lick observa-tory by Mr. Cartright has never seen or even been heard of by me and I know nothing, absolutely nothing, of the existence of any such letter. I have no doubt but that every observatory of any consequence in the world has dozens of such letters in its files with claims about a mythical planet within a couple of degrees of Uranus and with a satellite up near the north pole of the heavens pointed out by a spirit on the star Vega, and the discovery of double canals on Mars with the naked eye. These two letters actually exist. In connection with my statement of the difficulty of seeing this satellite with even a large telescope everybody will pardon my quoting from a letter just received from Prof. Young in reference to the discovery. His in-strument at Princeton is the third largest in America. It is a 23-inch Clark tele-scope, and is as perfect an instrument as can be made. He writes: 'I tried my best to see the satellite, but without success. I have supposed that the telescopes at Washington, 28-inch, and Charlottesville, 25-inch, with mine here, 23-inch, a the only ones in this country which would have the least chance of being able to see the object. I take it for granted that in giving its magnitude as the thirteenth you mean that it is of the same apparent brightness as a thirteenth magnitude star at that distance from the planet's limb. If so it is a question whether I could possibly see it. I panied by other members of the royal family. Their return to the capital was made the occasion for a great demonstration at the railway station. The members of the cabinet, the highest military and civil authorities and the members of the diplomatic corps were present to receive their majesties. The streets in the vicinity of the station and the route to the palace were crowded with people, and the royal party was given a most enthusiastic welcome. The youthful king looked as though his stay at San Sebastian had greatly benefited him and his sun-burned face showed that he had lived much in the open air.

As the carriage in which he rode was driven through the lines of people the little king was tumultuously cheered. He acknowledged his subjects' salutations by gravely bowing and raising his hat.

On the 10th the royal party will embark on the gunboat Conde de Venadito, which will then proceed to Palos de Moguer, where the queen's regent will visit the convent of La Rabida. On the 11th she will land at Huelva, where she will hold an official reception in the town hall and preside over the last sitting of the Americanist congress. In the evening she will hold an official reception at the Hotel Colon, at which will be invited all the members of the congress, the civil, naval and military authorities and the commanders and officers of the foreign warships.

On October 12, the anniversary of the discovery of America, the grand statue of Columbus will be unveiled. COLLECTOR COLLAHAN'S ANSWER. He Does Not Believe Houghton Was a Part-ner of Col. Canaday.

HE SUBMITS AFFIDAVITS OF THOSE WHO ENEW THE DECRASED'S PRIVATE AFFAIRS SHOWING THAT CANADAY WAS BADGERED AND WORRIED CONTINUALLY BY HOUGHTON.

This morning in the Equity Court Messrs. Allan Rutherford and J. H. Lichliter, representing Mr. John C. Collahan, the collector of the estate of the late Col. Wm. P. Canaday, filed their answer to the complaint of John Q. A. Houghton. In the answer Mr. ment of the school, he said, was 150, yet at Collahan denies that any partnership existed at the time of Col. Canaday's death between bim and Houghton, and believes that no partnership ever existed between them.

He avers that Houghton was not a man of neans and believes that at no time did he have ssession or command of any such sum of money as he alleges in his bill of complaint. Mr. Colishan answers that he is acting as collector of the estate under letters duly issued to sider that there is no danger connected with it him and denies Houghton's claim of ownership the mention of bombs creates a feeling of unin any of the property found upon the premises. He states that he is doing all in his power to fully carry out his duties as collector, but denies that he has interfered with any business affairs or interests or property of a firm of the name of W. P. Canaday & Co., composed of the late Wm. P. Canaday and the said Houghton. He states that he has no knowledge of any note falling due on September 30 last, either as the property of such firm or of Wm. P. Canaday NO EVIDENCE OF PARTNERSHIP. Collector Collaban further answers that took possession of the property of Col. Canaday and submitted the same to the appraisers appointed by the Orphans' Court, and that an inventory is being prepared. He says that Houghton was present at the time and opened the safe. He states that after the strictest search no notes were found, and nothing to indicate any such partnership as alleged by Houghton. he Commissioners in delegating the supervise the reform school was not a charity, and the superintendent of charities had no jurisdiction over the school. Houghton, late in the summer of 1891, laid before them a button-hole machine for which he had received letters patent. Houghton emloved them to organize a company for its ex-United States Patent Guarantee Company for its guarantee of the validity of the patents and the company's assistance in their promotion. Out of the remaining $300,000 they were to raise two sums aggregating $18,000, and $12,000 additional for the treasury of the company, and their compensation was to come from the stock remaining not required in raising the said $30,000. Some of the stock was sold and about $8,500 received therefor, about $6,500 of which was turned over to Houghton in part payment of the $12,000. Some parties in Baltimore agreed to take part of the stock, but later declined. A later effort was made to sell some of the stock to Philadelphia parties. but it was unsuccessful. Houghton was made superintendent of the company and given desk room in Col. Canaday's office.

LOANING MONEY TO CLERKS. Several months after Houghton commence coming to the office of Col. Canaday he made arrangements with the colonel for loaning money largely to government employes at high rates of interest, and that continued up to Canaday's death. During the last few months, avers Mr. West in his answer, this business gave Col. Canaday great trouble. On several oc-casions Col. Canaday told Mr. West that Houghton would authorize him to promise loans to peo ple, and then when they came for the money would back out, leaving him to advance his own money to keep his word good.

He said that Houghton seemed to take delight in doing such things, apparently to show his (Houghton's) power.

Inspector Hoover is the party and today Mr. Chase used some very uncomplimentary language toward Inspector Hoover in the health office and called him some names far from pleasant. Mr. Hoover says the outburst came from the fact that in doing the work to which he was detailed he came across 138 business places where food was disposed of which had never seen Inspector Chase or had witnessed his appearance at very infrequent intervals.

These reports he had in accordance with his instructions turned into the health office and Mr. Chase resented the fact that the truth should be disclosed.

STREET SWEEPING AND SPRINKLING. What It Costs Various Cities to Look After

Roadways. Washington is supposed to have comparasioners today and handed them the following tively clean streets, although for a city with its advantages in the way of pavements, none too clean. The methods of paying for the street would under no circumstances accept cleaning system here is well known, and it is of interest to find out how other cities manage the same work. Mayor Washburne of Chicago has recently made rather an elaborate investigation into this matter, and the results have been combined into a report to the city council.

The Indianapolis system, according to this report, of the cities of New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Minneapolis and Indianapolis, the latter is the only one which pays for the street cleaning by special assessments. In that city the work is done by contract, the cost in 1891 having been 44 cents per 10,000 square feet each cleaning for wood and brick and 34 cents for asphalt pavements, the cleanings varying from weekly to daily. By this contract the cost It pavements, the cleanings varying mystery to unravel and while the police con-IN WASHINGTON.

Taking this city and others considered by the report, a comparison may be made with Washington in regard to the cost of this work. In Washington for this year $115,000 was appro-priated for this purpose and the centract is 2414 cents per 1,000 square vards or 2,000 square feet. It will be seen, therefore that Washington gets its streets cleaned at a cheaper rate than Indianapolis. CLEANING IN ST. LOUIS.

According to the report the streets of St. Louis are cleaned under a three-year contract. The sweepings are immediately removed, hauled to barges and dumped in the river. The present contracts in that city are as follows: Granite and wood pavements, 48 cents, and asphalt, 38 cents each cleaning per 10,000 square feet. The entire cost of cleaning in St. Louis, however, including administration and care of barges, is about 60 cents each cleaning per 10,000 square feet.

OTHER CITIES. In Philadelphia and Chicago the removal of garbage and other items enter into the contract, and the cost of street sweeping solely cannot be given. A commission in 1891 reported, how-ever, that streets were cleaned in New York for $20.09 per mile; in Philadelphia for $11.47; St. Louis, $9.12; Indianapolis, $8.36, and Buffalo. $7, while the report of the mayor gives $27.50 per mile as the cost in Chicago. per mile as the cost in Chicago. STREET SPRINKLING.

Street sprinkling is another matter which Mayor Washburne's report touches. Chicago, he says, so far as the city service is concerned, is entirely without street sprinkling. In St. Louis, Indianapolis and Minneapolis the streets are sprinkled by special assessment. In St. Louis the work is done by contract and in 1891 the average cost was 314 cents per front foot of abutting property. There are twenty inspectors, in addition to the whole police force, to see that the work is properly done.

In St. Louis in 1891 4,000,000 gallons of water were daily used on this service, the water being furnished by the city without charge.

In Indianapolis seventy miles of streets are sprinkled during the summer at an average cost of 7% cents per front foot of abutting property.

In Minneapolis the contracts were let by the aldermen in the different wards. The cost in 1891 averaged 5% cents per front foot for unpaved streets and 6% cents for paved streets.
